CALL FOR ENTRIES FOR THE TRIER UNIVERSITY OF APPLIED SCIENCES TEACHING AWARD 2022: SPECIAL AWARD FOR INTERNATIONAL TEACHING

Universities have a social responsibility to society beyond research and teaching. The importance of this third mission is growing. What contribution can internationalisation make to addressing the major problems facing society, and what role can service learning projects with German and international students play in this? Under the guiding theme:

„Internationalisation for society: Third Mission & Service Learning“

Trier University of Applied Sciences is awarding a special prize for international teaching, worth €1500, this year for the third time, to honour the work of teachers committed to internationalisation and to present innovative international teaching concepts to the public.

This includes international courses or student team projects that promote community-oriented activities in cooperation with civil society organisations or public institutions and thus:

- give German and international students the opportunity to apply their academic knowledge in social, cultural or ecological fields
- promote the integration of international students into the [local] community and their participation in society
- strengthen the civil society engagement of German and international students
- understand internationalisation as a driver for social engagement and social innovation.

All members of Trier University of Applied Sciences are eligible to submit proposals for the Special Award for International Teaching. Proposals can be submitted informally until 15.10.2022.

Please include:

- specification of the lecturer(s)
- the department
