

Fact Sheet: Family Professorship

Do you love to pass on your knowledge? Are science and research a part of your everyday life? Family and care responsibilities too? Is a professorship with its teaching and research demands therefore not within your grasp at the moment?

Then the new Family Professorship at Trier University of Applied Sciences might be just the thing for you.

With a Family Professorship, you can reduce your teaching load over a three-year period to a maximum of 11 hours per week. During this time, you will be supported by a teacher for special tasks in a 50% position. This allows you to develop and thrive at Trier University of Applied Sciences and to have enough time for both family and care responsibilities as well as the professorship.

Your Benefits:

- Teaching load reduced to 11 hours per week (SWS) for a maximum of 3 years
- Concentration on specific focus areas
- Compatibility of professorship with family and care responsibilities

We Offer:

- An innovative working environment with young people
- Innovative research and teaching with application relevance
- A team-oriented working environment, pleasant teaching atmosphere
- Freedom and autonomy, possibilities to work flexibly
- International and interdisciplinary cooperation opportunities
